tients in separate rooms. One building will be exclusively for the occupancy of men, while another will be devoted wholly to women, and the third, or middle one, to mother and son, husband and wife, or brother and sister, as may be. The buildings will contain a music room, a library, dining room, and kitchen, and the most approved methods in heating, lighting, and ventilating will be adopted.

The Rev. Mr. Oakes said yesterday of the proposed semi-charity:

"The object of this undertaking is to furnish to those in poor or modest circumstances who require the advantages afforded by the climate of Colorado, a comfortable, pleasant, homelike place to live in at a moderate rate. To such people this new home will furnish all the comforts of their former homes and at the price of only $5 a week for each person. This includes board, lodging, and medical attendance. Connected with the establishment will be a large ranch, situated about nine miles from the city, and upon this those who wish may work to earn money with which to meet the necessary expenses of their treatment.

"The buildings thoroughly equipped will cost $75,000. I should like to give the names of the benefactors who contributed to this institution, but I am pledged to secrecy. A lady in Grace Church gave $18,000, and one of the buildings will be named Grace House in her honor."

The series of smoking concerts arranged for Sunday nights to begin after the grand popular concerts in the Metropolitan Opera House are over, will, it is though, be an interesting and attractive feature of the season campaign. So far as the vaudeville entertainments are concerned, the programmes will be up to the same high standard as characterized these affairs had year.

She Submits to a Necond Surgical Operation, Which Promises Well.

An extraordinary Casarian operation was performed at the Polyclinic Hospital at Thirtyfourth street and Third avenue on Nov. 9. The patient, Mrs. Charles S. Martin of 400 West the same manner eighteen months before. On that occasion it was impossible to save the child. The second operation has thus far been a complete success. At the hospital it was said last plete success. At the hospital it was said last night that the mother and child were both doing well. The baby is apparently strong and vigorous and has a firm hold on life.

Dr. A. B. Tucker of 237 West Twenty-second street performed the operation. Dr. Tucker said last night that he recretted that anything regarding the operation had become public, and he would not discuss it in any way.

Cassarian operations are comparatively rare. In many cases second operations are impossible. The statistics in 1889 showed that 175 women had thus been operated upon in this country. The statistics in 1889 showed that 175 women had thus been operated upon in this country, and that 65 of them had been saved.

Since that time the percentage of mortality has been greatly reduced. An interesting fact about this operation has been noted by a recognized English authority on the subject. Although it is a major operation in surgery, that requires great skill and careful treatment, he says it is known and performed with a fair amount of success by the natives of Uganda in Central Africa.

The Murder Theory Exploded by the Off-

ITRACA, Nov. 17 .- The Rew murder theory was exploded to-day by the officials having the investigation in charge. Rew's father insisted that his son was in South Danby on the day he disappeared, had a gun, stopped at a farmhouse disappeared, had a gun, stopped at a farmhouse for an hour or so, and was last heard of about three miles from ithaca, where. Mr. Rew said, his son was murdered. The officers have found that the young man seen in Danby was not young Rew, but another Cornell student of the name of Laid. Mr. Laid said that he was in South Danby on Sept. 25, had a gun, stopped at the farmhouse for a glass of milk, and did a number of other perfectly natural things. This brings the disappearance of flew back to its original status, to wit: Young Rew left his boarding place of Sept. 25, and has not been seen since. The officers hold more firmly to the belief now that Rew is alive.

Four Indictable Candidates Out of about 450 candidates for office at the recent election all but five have filed with the County Clerk a sworn statement of expenses. The delinquents are Robert A. Miller of 296 Ninth avenue, Charles C. Brooke of 100 Third avenue. Frank J. Ferrell of 130 West Thirty-third street, James H. McWilliams of 64 East 106th street, and Frank H. Stover of 230 East 104th street. The last mand died after election, so that there are but four who may be indicted for misdemeanor.

M'KANE'S ACCOUNTS. Absordly Incorrect, According to Expert

Accountant Franklin Allen. Franklin Allen, who has been employed for several months in an examination counts of John Y. McKane, made this statement

"I visited McKane at Sing Sing while I was engaged in the investigation. He received me cordially and made many promises as to what he would do in aiding me in the work. He had a new account ready for me, explaining that he had discovered errors in the previous ones submitted to the town meeting in Gravesend in April. It is astonishing how fond McKane is of making out accounts. His difficulty, however, is that his accounts don't harmonize with his verbal statements or with each other. His last account, like most of his previous ones, is absurdly incorrect. In the last year of his power at Gravesend he either irregularly issued or misapplied the proceeds of $335,000 of town bonds. I have no hesitation in saying that the majority of his financial statements to the town meetings of Gravesend in recent years were fraudulent.

"His cash deficiencies reported by me in July to the Mayor and Comptroller are as follows: $46,918.60 due to town, $16,500 due to County Treasurer for overdrafts on Deputy Treasurer Gardner. In 1889 I find he received $20,500 for police purposes, but accounted for only $15,600." received me cordially and made many promises

Mr. Drayton Says He Lives to New Jorsey. J. Coleman Drayton, through his attorneys filed yesterday in the Clerk's office of the United States Circuit Court a demurrer to the suit brought by V. J. Hedden & Sona contractors, of New Jersey, to recover $2.792.81. Mr. Dravion declares that he is a resident of New Jersey and not of New York, as the complaint charges, and that therefore the United States Circuit Court is without jurisdiction. The suit was Instituted last September. The complaint alleges that Mr. Drayton gave a contract to V. J. Hedden & Sons to finish the mason, iron, and carpenter work on his house at Bernards. Romerset county, N. J., for $33,500. The plaintiffs allege that $1,140 is still due them. For a second cause of action they maintain that Mr. Drayton owes them $1,402.81 for alterations and additions to the building. filed yesterday in the Clerk's office of the United pen and ink and the brush is so great as never to suggest the means by which he accomplishes his ends in illustration. His method is wholly his own, and is characterized by extreme delicacy or great atrength and breadth, according as the subject may require, and within he never losse sight of character, the essential after all in his interpretation of his author.

In his illustrations to Shakespeare Mr. Abbey has been must happy, not alone in his ability to express the very individual qualities of his characters, but in the charming accuracies of the times in which Shakespeare wrote, and of which he has made long and faithful studies in the course of his residence in shakespeare's country. In the little exhibition which Mr. Keppel has arranged in his gallery in East Sixteenth atreet. In his square, Mr. Abbey may be seen in some thirty of his latest illustrations to some of the plays of Shakespeare. The drawings will remain on view for three weeks.

The catalogue includes pictures taken from "The Tanpest." "Measure for Measure." "All's Well That Ends Well." "Twelfth Night." "Merchant of Venice," "Merry Wivesof Windson," and "Comedy of Errurs." and if the artist has not always realized the popular ideal in all of these Shakespearean types, still the force and original drawings will afford a new pleasure to those who have been familiar with Mr. Abbey's work as engraved for the magnatines.

These young omen were the Misses Sutro, who made their first public appearance in this neighborhood Tuesday night at the Seidl concert in brooklyn. Their playing then was applied by their audience with a cordiality which showed that the novelty of their performance-taken with its artistic qualities—would make them popular figures on the concert stage, even in this season, which promises to be so notable for its celebrities. between the two in the matter of age. They are still under 20. Rose, the older, is considerably the tailer as well, and is a fresh-complexioned, bright-eyed girl, with light-brown hair brushed back from her brow in waves. Ottille, the younger, is a head shorter than her sister, with the same waves in her dark hair, which is parted in the middle and falls down over her ears. Both of them are very self-possessed young women, well pleased with the recognition that has come after their five years of study in Germany and the work that preceded it in this country.

They were born in Baltimore, and their studies began early. Their mother was their first teacher. Five years ago they went to Berlin and studied under Prof. Harth. They were frequent performers at the public concerts of the conservatory where they gained their reputation as promising outplis in solo work. Now they have adopted ensemble playing, which has come to be a rare art. It is infrequent enough to be interesting were it not that these two young women bring to their task the charm of youth and grace as well as artistic powers and training of a high quality. The "Social Register" has increased its usefulness along with the enlargement of its scope. This ninth winter volume of the "Register" serves most purposes of a directory, and the families it names are not representative merely of society, but of a substantial class in the city's life. The list follows the expanding tendencies life. The list follows the expanding tendencies of the social life of New York, but never emits those who give distinctive tone to society. Its immiliar information as to maiden names, clubs, and colleges is still dispensed, and the full names of married women are still given under the curious caption of "Married Maidens." Thore has been added a key to marriages and deaths, with references to the quarterly issue which contained the original entry. Since the last winter number of the "Register" was issued "310 New Yorkers married. The "Register" also shows that New Yorkers who travelled abroad were twice as numerous as they were the year before, and that the most central point of residence of New York 'pruminent families' is now at Forty-fourth street, between Fifth and Madison avenues, which must be a number of blocks higher up than it ever was before. The tities "Mr. and Mrs." are now printed in italics. This shows the name to clearer advantage, and a change of address is now sasily noted in the book. AGED MRS. HAIGHT DEMENTED. Dr. Carleton, who has been her physician fourteen years, says that she is suffering from senile dementia, is incapable of looking after her large interests, and believes that she is at one of her country places at Goshen, instead of in this city. He states that she will not regain the use of her faculties and will not again be in a condition to manage her affairs. This fact is due to her advanced age and to the nature of her malady, which is progressive. Dr. Hamilton says that the old lady has not sufficient capacity to manage her large estate or to direct intelligently the disposition of her income.

Kerr, proprietor of the Putnam House, has obtained from Judge Freedman, in the Superior Court, an order to show cause why an injunction should not issue against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and Richard and John Deeves to restrain them from erecting the westerly wall of a building at East Twenty-fifth street, between Third and Lezing-I wenty-firsh street, between Third and Legington avenues, which building is to be used as a power house of the new Legington avenue cable road. Mr. Kerr, who lives at 138 East Twenty-fifth street, says that there is an alleyway in the rear of his house which he used to reach his stable and that he also has a coal vault opening on the alley. He charges that the defendants have broken into the bin and have used the siley, thus cutting him off from access to his stable. The order was made returnable on the 2nd of the present month.
